

Ten muddy good years

Back in 1996, five Northern Irish Land Rover enthusiasts got together to form the Northern Ireland Land Rover Club. Ten years on, the club is celebrating its Anniversary in style and a recent highlight was the Charity Family Fun Day held at Whiteman's Farm that raised £600. This is a relatively new site, but already the members' favourite off-road venue.

Now boasting 100 members, the club remains true to its original aims of off-roading and mutual support but has also developed links with other clubs and takes part in static shows. As there are no greenaries in Northern Ireland, arrangements with the Forestry Service and private landowners provide venues, while in return club members carry out repairs to the land and hold "clean-up" days.

Further details on the Northern Ireland Land Rover Club can be found on the Club's web site.
